

Albuterol vs Xopenex Post Test

- 1) Albuterol is a bronchodilator used in treating conditions with reversible airway obstruction by relaxing muscles in the airways to improve breathing.
 - A. True
 - B. False

- 2) Other names for Albuterol are:
 - A. Proventil, Ventolin, Levalbuterol
 - B. Levalbuterol, Ventolin, Volmax
 - C. Proventil, Ventolin, Volmax
 - D. All of the above

- 3) Symptoms of bronchospasm are:
 - A. Coughing and wheezing
 - B. Chest tightness and shortness of breath
 - C. B only
 - D. All of the above

- 4) Albuterol should be stored in direct sunlight.
 - A. True
 - B. False

- 5) Side effects of Albuterol are:
 - A. Seizures
 - B. Rapid, pounding, or irregular heartbeat
 - C. Chest pain or discomfort
 - D. Nausea/Vomiting
 - E. All of the above

- 6) The generic name for Xopenex is Levalbuterol.
 - A. True
 - B. False

- 7) Xopenex should be stored in the protective foil pouch at room temperature, protected from freezing temperatures and direct sunlight.
 - A. True
 - B. False

- 8) Because of the potential to interact with Xopenex, the healthcare provider should be made aware if the patient is taking:
- A. Diuretics
 - B. Antidepressants
 - C. Drugs known to affect the heart's regular rhythm
 - D. Drugs used for high blood pressure
 - E. All of the above
- 9) Side effects of Xopenex are:
- A. Temporary increase in heart rate
 - B. Tremors or nervousness
 - C. Nausea or light-headedness
 - D. Chest pain or seizures
 - E. All of the above
- 10) Xopenex is less expensive than Albuterol.
- A. True
 - B. False